Trades for American Boys.

The trades in our country, of late years, have been almost monopolized by foreigners. The American boy, however, when he does take a trade, goes straight on to the top of the ladder. It seems as if our boys would rather be fourth-rate lawyers, or physicians, than earn their living by working with their hands. Only the other day I read in a New York newspaper of a young lawyer in a distant city, whom I knew some years ago when I resided in that section of the country, who literally starved to death. He made scarcely any money, was too proud to tell his want, lived as long as he could on crackers and water, and was found one day in his office, dead from lack of nourishment. He should never have entered the legal profession, for he had no ability in that direction. As a farmer or mechanic he might have lived a long, useful, and successful life.

No boy, of course, should enter a trade unless he feels himself fitted for it; but, on the other hand, he should not, it seems to me, let the false pride against manual labor, which now prevails to such an extent in our country, prevent him from endeavoring to do better work with his hands than in his inmost thoughts he knows he can do with his head.—St. Nicholas for August.

Helping the Minister.

"There was one thing that helped me very much while I was preaching to-day," said the clergyman.

"What was that?" asked a friend.

"It was the attention of a little girl who kept her eyes fixed on me and seemed to understand every word I said; she was a great help to me."

"What! can a little child be a great help to a minister?" "Yes!" "How?"

By paying attention. Think of that my little ones, and when you go to church, fix your eyes on the minister, and try to understand what he says, for he is speaking to you as well as to grown-up people.—Selected.

Karl and His Sister.

Karl had been cross all the morning. In the first place, it was a rainy day, and he could not play out doors with his new cart. Then he wanted Elsa's blocks.

Dear little Elsa was playing with them very happily, and tried to coax Karl to join her in making a high tower. But no! Karl wanted them all to himself to make a railroad and steam engines. Mamma would not let her little boy be so selfish as that; so he knelt sulkily on a chair at one end of the table, while Elsa worked away at the tower. But the moment it was done, naughty Karl with one blow from his little fist knocked the whole beautiful tower to pieces.

Poor Elsa! At first she was very angry, but the next moment she thought of her motto: "Blessed are the meek." She knew that the meek are those who would rather suffer wrong than do wrong.

So she did not strike him, nor run crying to her mother, but picked up all the blocks and gave them to Karl, saying, "You may play with them, Karl, if you like. I am going to look at my picture book."

Do you not think Karl must have felt very much ashamed?—Exchange.

A Swearer Silenced.

When the Boston train came steaming into the depot, the crowd rushed for seats. As a band of recruits mounted the platform they shouted back to their friends who had accompanied them to the train, the various slang phrases they could command, interspersed with an oath now and then. As the train moved on, they pushed each other into the car where many ladies were seated, including Mrs. B. and her two boys.

Then the oaths came out thick and fast, each one evidently trying to outdo the other in profanity. Mrs. B. shuddered for herself and her boys, for she could not bear to have their young minds contaminated with such language. If the train had not been so crowded she would have looked for seats elsewhere, but under the circumstances she was compelled to remain where she was.

Finally, after the course jesting had continued nearly an hour, a little girl, who with her mother sat in front of the party, stepped out timidly from her seat, and going up to the ring-leader of the group—a young man whose countenance indicated considerable intelligence—she presented him with a small Bible.

She was a little, delicate-looking creature, only seven or eight years old; and as she laid the book in his hands, she raised her eyes appealingly to his, but without a word went back to her seat.

The party could not have been more completely hushed if an angel had silenced them. Not another oath was heard, and scarcely a word was spoken by any of them during the rest of the journey.

The young man who had received the book seemed particularly impressed. He got out of the car at the next station and purchased a paper of candy for his little friend, which he presented to her. He then stooped down and kissed her, and said he would always keep the little Bible for her sake.

The little girl's mother afterwards told Mrs. B. that her child had been so troubled by the wickedness of those young men that she could not rest until she had given her little Bible, which she valued so highly herself.—Christian Instructor.

New Use for Babies.

The little body of a healthy babe throws off a great amount of heat. It will quickly warm a crib or bed, when placed in it and nicely covered.

When Dr. Kane and his company were in the north of Greenland, he once came near freezing to death. He had become so chilled his friends had great difficulty in warming him to life again. Various means were tried to bring back warmth and life to his chilled body, but in vain.

At length it was suggested to put two or three Esquimaux babies against his flesh in bed. It was done, and resulted in kindling warmth and life. It was believed that without this timely aid he would have died.

If that great man had never loved babies before, he surely must have done so ever afterwards. Those little dusky infants, living so near the North Pole, proved better than stoves or robes or spirits to one ready to perish.—Selected.

Chronic Catarrh.

C. W. Mellier, of 406 South Fourth street, St. Louis, is twenty years of age, and has been a sufferer from chronic catarrh, which had become quite offensive. When he came to Dr. Hartman, two months ago, he was told it would take six months to cure him. But he has progressed beyond all expectations, and nearly all signs of the disease have disappeared. Before being treated he could not breathe out of the nose, and now he has perfect control of the nasal organ. PERUNA did the business.

James Dunn, of 1370 Gay street, St. Louis, has suffered from catarrh since 1870. The gentleman told the reporter the following straightforward story of his case. "I took the disease in Memphis. It commenced in my head and extended to my throat, and a bad cough followed. I went to a number of physicians, and they told me my trouble was liver disease, and one said it was palpitation of the heart that caused the cough. For the last year I have been practically worthless. I could not ascend a flight of stairs without suffering from shortness of breath and fast beating of the heart, and my appetite was very defective. After eating I often coughed so hard that I would throw up everything in my stomach. I could not walk any distance without panting. Five weeks ago I went under the care of Dr. Hartman, and now my cough has disappeared and I feel like a new man." PERUNA was his treatment.

Next came George Sauerbaum, residing at 1929 Carr street, St. Louis, who is an old patient of Dr. Hartman. He stated that he had suffered most intensely from chronic catarrh of the head and lungs, but is now almost cured, his lungs being entirely well and his head greatly improved. The gratitude of this gentleman was almost boundless, and he expressed it to the reporter in the strongest terms, saying "PERUNA will cure any disease."

I. P. Dukhart, of Cumberland, Md., superintendent B. & O. R. R. Co.'s Hotels (conductor on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for twenty-eight years, and previously a druggist), writes: "DR. S. B. HARTMAN & CO., Columbus, O. I have used but one bottle of PERUNA between myself and son. He had diphtheritic sore throat, and is now well. As for myself, it has entirely relieved the dullness in my head, which has been of long standing—the result of chronic malaria. I never took anything in my life that gave me such great satisfaction. My wife is now taking it also."

PERUNA is sold by all druggists. Price $1.00 per bottle, six bottles for $5.00. If you cannot get it of your druggist, we will send it on receipt of regular price. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, don't be persuaded to try something else, but order from us as directed. S. B. HARTMAN & CO., Columbus, Ohio.
